“ I was fortunate enough to meet Maylon and have the privilege of being his barber for more than two years. I always looked forward to his appointments. We often talked about politics, life, and whatever was happening in the world around us. He was a kind, respectful man whom I admired greatly and held in high regard. We shared many similar interests, and our conversations were always entertaining and enjoyable. My thoughts and prayers are with his daughter and family during this difficult time. He spoke of his daughter often—at least once during every visit, and it was clear how much he loved and cared for her. Maylon, you will be missed by all those who knew you.
